

JHSC CERTIFICATIONS

You can now get all of your Joint Health and Safety Committee Certifications with InFuse, online and via distance learning.

In Ontario, most workplaces with 20 or more workers must have a Joint Health and Safety Committee (JHSC), comprised of at least one member representing the workers and one member representing the employer. Four member minimums are required when companies have more than 50 regular workers. The committee's primary role is to identify workplace health and safety issues and bring them to the attention of the employer.

Under the Ontario Occupational Health and Safety Act, at least one worker and one employer member of a JHSC must be "certified". The certification consists of two Parts:

Joint Health and Safety Committee PART I

Joint Health and Safety Committee PART II AUTOMOTIVE SPECIFIC

InFuse has partnered with EHS Zone, a CPO approved provider who will dispense the courses.

Access is through the InFuse Compliance System connected to the EHS Zone System and results are forwarded directly to SkillPass by EHS Zone.
